

What could be better on a beautiful summer afternoon than a free band concert? How about a gathering of several outstanding community bands from across the Midland, all in one place, for a great afternoon of music?

Join us for the first ever Community Band Festival of the Midlands, June 30 at Midtown Crossing's Turner Park in Omaha. Hosted by the Nebraska Wind Symphony, Omaha's community concert band, the Festival will include eight ensembles from eastern Nebraska and western Iowa. Each group will play about 40 minutes, leading up to a mass performance of Sousa's "The Stars and Stripes Forever." The Nebraska Wind Symphony
Omaha's Community Concert Band

The Nebraska Wind Symphony is a musical treasure and goodwill ambassador for the City of Omaha and State of Nebraska. Comprised of 75 adults from a wide variety of vocational backgrounds, the NWS performs three formal concerts a year plus other appearances, including the annual Make the Season Bright concert in the Holland Center on Thanksgiving evening and our Fourth of July Celebration at Chalco Hills Recreation Area.

The Nebraska Wind Symphony provides amateur adult musicians an opportunity to perform music in a nurturing environment and to share our music joyfully with the community.
